PROCEEDINGS

THE COURT: All right, GM Motors Liquidation

Corporation. We have a number of things on today's calendar, most of which, I sense, won't require judicial time, but several of which will. Since I suspect that the bulk of the people are here by reason of the claims estimation issues, my thought is to deal with that ahead of the tort relief from -- excuse me, late proof of claim matter. But I'll take recommendations from you.

(Pause)

THE COURT: I'm sorry. I lost my train of thought. I had a request that the late proof of claim issue be dealt with earlier rather than later, but I don't know how many meters I have running on plan issues. Mr. Smolinsky, can I get your recommendation?

I will tell you that I have a tentative on the late proof of claim, which is to not decide it today and set up an evidentiary hearing on whether or not he got actual notice, and to rule that an informal proof of claim is insufficient. But I will give people a chance to be heard on that. And I'll take your recommendation as to how we're going to proceed.

MR. SMOLINSKY: Good morning, Your Honor. Joe

Smolinsky from Weil, Gotshal & Manges for the debtors. The 3018 matters which are comprised of two separate main motions can be dispensed with fairly quickly. There are a lot of Page 15 1 lawyers in the courtroom, and I think we agree with your recommendation to deal with those matters which Mr. Karotkin 2. will address. And then we can move to the remainder of the calendar. THE COURT: Okay. 6 MR. SMOLINSKY: Shouldn't take very long. THE COURT: All right. 7 MR. STANLEY: Your Honor, this is Mr. Stanley on that 8 9 late claim issue. 10 THE COURT: Yes. 11 MR. STANLEY: I apologize for interrupting. I do have a court order mediation with a judge waiting for me in about an 12 13 hour and fifteen minutes in downtown Los Angeles. And I heard the Court's tentative, and I understand the Court's tentative. 14 I don't think the defendants filed any affidavits or any 15 16 evidence in opposition to my motion. That would be my 17 position. 18 THE COURT: I understand that, Mr. Stanley, but you have to understand that I have a case with thousands of 19 20 creditors here and a pretty full courtroom and I'm going to get through my calendar as quickly as I can. 21 22 MR. STANLEY: All right. I'm happy to be patient. 23 just wanted to let the Court know that --THE COURT: I understood that before you spoke, Mr. 24 25 Stanley.

MR. STANLEY: I apologize. Thank you, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Mr. Karotkin?

MR. KAROTKIN: Thank you, Your Honor. Stephen

Karotkin, Weil, Gotshal & Manges for the debtors. I think we have a resolution on the 3018 issues, if I could report that to the Court.

THE COURT: Go ahead.

MR. KAROTKIN: With respect to those other than Green Hunt Wedlake, which is the trustee for the Nova Scotia entity, I believe we have an agreement as follows. With respect to those entities represented by the Greenberg Traurig firm, they would be entitled to vote their claims as part of the quarantee claim. That would be limited, Your Honor, to fifteen entities voting. So fifteen in number. The same with respect to the Brown Rudnick clients, limited to seven in number voting. And with respect to Goldman Sachs and Morgan Stanley, I had a brief conversation with counsel, and they would be treated the same way. He advised me that he believes they only have one vote each, but he will confirm that with me later in the day. We have no objection if it's slightly more than one, as well, and I'm sure that we can work that out. With the further understanding being, Your Honor, that the cumulative amount voted with respect to all of those entities cannot exceed 1.072 billion, which I believe is the amount of the guarantee claim filed.

THE COURT: Um-hum.

MR. KAROTKIN: And of course, all rights are reserved with respect to the substantive objection to the claim filed by the creditors' committee.

And I think with that, unless there's any disagreement from counsel in the room representing those entities, I think that resolves those pleadings.

THE COURT: Before I'm comfortable that everything has been resolved, I want to hear the totality of what's open and what's not open.

MR. KAROTKIN: Okay.

THE COURT: What about Green Hunt Wedlake?

MR. KAROTKIN: With respect to Green Hunt Wedlake,
Your Honor, we have the reached the following agreement, which I'd like to read into the record.

"The Nova Scotia trustee shall be permitted to provisionally vote, as one vote, its Class III general unsecured claim in the amount of $1,607,647,592.49, provided, however, that all rights of the debtors and the creditors' committee are expressly reserved and retained at or prior to the hearing on confirmation of the plan to renew the opposition to the 3018 motion on not less than five calendar days' notice and to argue that the vote of the Nova Scotia trustee should not be counted under Bankruptcy Rule 3018 in the event, one, the Nova Scotia trustee does not vote to accept the plan and,

Page 18 two, Class III, which is the general unsecured creditors 1 2 claim -- class votes to reject the plan." THE COURT: Mr. Karotkin, if I were to approve those 3 two resolutions, what remaining issues would there still be? 4 MR. KAROTKIN: I would just like to make -- there's 5 6 one more part of that if --7 THE COURT: Oh, go ahead. MR. KAROTKIN: "In addition, upon delivery by the Nova 8 Scotia trustee of its objections to confirmation of the plan in 9 writing, the debtors shall meet and confer with the Nova Scotia 10 11 trustee in an effort to resolve those objections." Now, answer --12 13 THE COURT: Say that last paragraph slower, please, Mr. Karotkin. 14 MR. KAROTKIN: Yes. 15 16 "Upon delivery by the Nova Scotia trustee of its 17 objections to confirmation of the plan in writing, the debtors will meet and confer with the Nova Scotia trustee in an effort 18 19 to resolve those objections." 20 THE COURT: That last duty being simply to meet and confer --21 22 MR. KAROTKIN: That's --THE COURT: -- confer impliedly in good faith. 23 MR. KAROTKIN: Yes, sir. 24 25 THE COURT: Uh-hum. Now, if I were to approve those Page 19 or consider that a satisfactory resolution, other than 1 reservations of rights on behalf of the creditors' committee, which I well understood from its submission, what open issues 3 would there be vis-a-vis matters of voting? MR. KAROTKIN: It would -- first of all, it's a 5 6 reservation of rights on behalf of both the debtors and the creditors' committee. 7 THE COURT: Okay. 9 MR. KAROTKIN: As to voting, I don't think there are any other issues. 10 11 THE COURT: All right. Does anybody want to be heard on this before I focus on it further? 12 13 Mr. Zirinsky, come to a microphone, please. MR. ZIRINSKY: Happy to, sir. 14 Good morning, Your Honor. Bruce Zirinsky, Greenberg 15 16 Traurig, on behalf of Appaloosa, Aurelius, Fortress and -- I always forget the last one -- Elliott. We represent those four 17 18 management firms that, in turn, represent the fifteen entities that Mr. Karotkin referred to. 19 20 Mr. Karotkin, from our perspective, has accurately described the resolution as to the voting of those claims. I 21 just want to add that all other rights are being reserved, but 22 23 it does, in response to Your Honor's question, resolve, from our perspective, our voting issues with respect to plan. 24 25 THE COURT: Okay.

Page 20 MR. ZIRINSKY: Thank you. 1 2 THE COURT: Anybody else? Come up, please, Mr. -- I see two people. Mr. Dublin, 3 you first. You've got Green Hunt Wedlake? 4 MR. DUBLIN: Yes, Your Honor. 5 6 THE COURT: Okay. MR. DUBLIN: Philip Dublin, Akin Gump Strauss Hauer & 7 Feld, on behalf of Green Hunt Wedlake. Same issue, Your Honor, 8 9 we -- the representations by Mr. Karotkin resolve our issues with respect to, at least in the interim, the 3018 motion and, 10 of course, without having to say so, all rights reserved as far 11 as the claim objection goes and any plan objections. 12 13 THE COURT: Okay. Anyone else? MR. PIRON: Your Honor, Caleb Piron from Brown 14 Rudnick. We represent certain holders not represented by the 15 16 Greenberg group. 17 THE COURT: Who? MR. PIRON: I do have a list here, Your Honor. 18 19 filed a couple of joinder pleadings, one of which was to the --20 was to Greenberg's response to the committee's objection, the second of which was to Greenberg's 3018 motion. And I 21 22 apologize if I told Mr. Karotkin --23 THE COURT: Who? Answer my question, please. MR. PIRON: Sure, Your Honor. It's Anchorage Capital 24 25 Master Off Shore Limited, Canyon-GRF Master Fun, L.P., Canyon

Page 21 Value Realization Fund, L.P., CSS, LLC, Knighthead Master Fun, 1 L.P., LMA SPC for the benefit of MAP 84, the Lyxor/Canyon 2. Realization Fund, Onex Debt Opportunity Fund, Redwood Master Fund, and the Canyon Realization Fund. 4 Your Honor, I think I told Mr. Karotkin approximately 5 6 That number is actually ten, so we'd request that we have the consent to vote those ten claims. 7 THE COURT: All right. Do you have any substantive 9 objection other than the question you want me to put to Mr. Karotkin? 10 11 MR. PIRON: I don't, Your Honor. THE COURT: All right, Mr. Karotkin, does that cause 12 13 you to change your request to me in any way? MR. KAROTKIN: No, sir. 14 THE COURT: All right. 15 16 MR. PIRON: Thank you, Your Honor. THE COURT: Okay. Has everybody had a chance to speak 17 their piece? 18 All right, I have no problem with the agreements that 19 20 have been made so long as they're for voting only. And I will simply say, since I think it counts a little more when I say it 21 22 than when the parties say it, that this with a full reservation of rights on the underlying issues raised by the creditors! 23 committee and includes, without limitation, reservations of 24 25 rights by the creditors' committee by the debtors on behalf of the estate and with respect Green Hunt Wedlake and the various funds who've been mentioned as well.

So you can and should paper that, Mr. Karotkin or give me whatever you think is necessary to implement that, and then I'm going to ask everybody who is here only on that matter to leave as soon as you want to.

MR. KAROTKIN: Thank you, sir. I will circulate a proposed order among the parties.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. KAROTKIN: May I be excused, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes, you may.

MR. KAROTKIN: Thank you.

THE COURT: Now, Mr. Smolinsky, I'll deal with the late proof of claim on Wiesjahn if we can next, so he can get onto his other obligation.

Let me flesh out my tentative on that. It seems to me, subject to your rights to be heard, based upon my knowledge of the law and my review of the underlying pleadings, that the debtors are entitled to presumptions of mailing. But it also appears to me that it's not an irrebuttable presumption and that Mr. Stanley has stated in declarations that, notwithstanding what I understand the debtors to have told me, that there were three separate mailings, that he still didn't get the notice.

My tentative is that because the presumption of Page 23 receipt is not irrebuttable, he's entitled to his day in court 1 2 to show me, by old fashioned testimony and subject to duties to be cross-examined, that actual notice was not given. And I think that where you have a duty to provide actual notice, and 5 you know who's supposed to get it, in contrast by way of 6 example to the Apartheid claimants whose identities, for the most part, aren't known, he's entitled to his opportunity to 7 convince that the presumption should be overridden. I find the 9 remaining points that it was an informal proof of claim, pretty 10 unpersuasive, although I quess I will hear argument on that. 11 Although, I think that, frankly, I think it all comes down to his credibility, and he's going to have to come to New York and 12 13 get in that witness box and testify, and then I'll decide whether or not he's telling me the truth or not. That's my 14 tentative. I'll hear your position. I'll hear Mr. Stanley 15 16 next. Obviously, I've read the papers. You don't have to go 17 through late claims 101. 18 MR. SMOLINSKY: Your Honor, Joe Smolinsky. Do you 19 want Mr. Stanley to go first given the fact that it's his 20 motion or --THE COURT: All right. Fair enough. Mr. Stanley? 21 22 You still with me, Mr. Stanley? 23 MR. STANLEY: Can you hear me okay?

before "can you hear me okay", I didn't hear that.

THE COURT: Just now, I can. If you said anything

MR. STANLEY: Yes, Your Honor. I had the phone on mute while you were handling the other matter. I forgot to turn it back on.

Yes, thank you for taking me. I appreciate you considering my other obligation. I have heard the Court's tentative. I am happy to come to New York if need be. I will state to the Court that, as Your Honor can see from the papers, the envelopes were misaddressed, and I did not receive them.

But I am happy to come to court and testify.

The defendant's filed not one declaration in opposition to my motion, and there isn't any competent evidence to the contrary. But again, I'm happy to come to New York. I am having a heart procedure on February 16th. It's going to lay me up for thirty days, and so I have a doctor's note from Cedars-Sinai -- which is the big hospital here in Los Angeles; I don't know if Your Honor's familiar with it -- from the director there of the heart institute to that effect. And that's my only -- I have a civil trial obligations, but that's my real obligation. Otherwise, I'm happy to come to New York if Your Honor wants me to. And I'm happy to testify.

THE COURT: All right. Now, Mr. Stanley, whether or not it was misaddressed is a disputed issue of fact. As I understand it, the envelopes were addressed to Martin Stanley, Law Office of, and one of the issues that we'll be dealing with at an evidentiary hearing will be to explore the significance of that.

MR. STANLEY: Actually, it was addressed, Your Honor, to Stanley Martin, the Law Office of Stanley Martin, and it didn't say -- and it was not addressed, actually, to the Law Office of Stanley Martin. It was addressed to Annalisa Sand, on the first line, for example, Judd Wiesjahn on the next line -- on the first line, with the next line being Stanley Martin Law Office, and I am not Stanley Martin and never have been.

THE COURT: Oh.

MR. STANLEY: And there's never been a representation to that effect. And the defendants were always aware because in our original papers, we clearly stated that I am Martin Louis Stanley. I was in the court filings here in the county court in California at all times.

THE COURT: Forgive me, Mr. Stanley, I didn't realize until you said it this moment that the first name and last name were flip-flopped.

MR. STANLEY: Correct. And ther's no evidence to the other -- to any other effect. They had that that way the entire time, and we did receive a paper some time about a month or two ago which caused me my concern because, for example, it was randomly delivered and it did have the wrong name on it.

I'm pretty sure; I don't have it in hand because I'm not at the office because it's very early in the morning here. Lucky I don't live in Hawaii.

But the naming was flip-flopped. And again, it did not say in care of the Law Office of Martin Stanley or care of anybody. It just Annalisa Sand and Judd Wiesjahn on the first lines.

THE COURT: All right. Okay, thank you. I understand the issue much better now than I did at the outset.

MR. STANLEY: I apologize, Your Honor if I didn't make that clear in my declaration. I'm happy to come to New York to make it clear and if I can find the paper that I did receive recently that triggered my thought process on this, I'm hapy to bring it. I'm not a bankruptcy practitioner. I have been nominated twice in the last four years for e-trialer of the year (ph.). I have been a state bar probation monitor, and I have taught, probably, hundreds of MCLE seminars on ethics of malpractice, but at least dozens. So I'm happy to come.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. STANLEY: I've never handled a bankruptcy case in my life, and I'm not as familiar as you all are with the procedures. I can tell you this. None of us got this document. We've never missed a filing deadline in my office, ever.

THE COURT: I understand. The issue, it's not going to be so much one of bankruptcy law; it's going to be whether, if Mr. Stanley tells me what he just told me and tells it to me from the witness stand, and if I believe him, then the rebuttable presumption will have been rebutted.

Mr. Smolinsky, I'll hear from you.

MR. SMOLINSKY: Thank you, Your Honor. Joe Smolinsky for the debtors. I understand your tentative ruling, Your Honor, but I do feel that I need to say a few words, because we are going to be dealing with hundreds of similar instances, and it's important that we try to make sure that his rights are preserved while not overburdening the Court.

From our perspective, Your Honor, this isn't even a closed case. The premise of the argument is that claimant never received notice of the bar date. First of all, he argues that there was no service on the plaintiffs, who were the parents of the decedent, and second, that the name of the firm was wrong.

As Your Honor noted, there were three notices of the bar date sent. They did -- they were served on the Law Offices of Stanley Martin instead of the Law Offices of Martin Stanley. However, none of those three notices came back. They were not returned as undeliverable. Mr. Stanley --

THE COURT: Mr. Stanley, every time you shuffle a paper on your desk, it sounds like an explosion in my courtroom.

MR. STANLEY: I apologize, Your Honor. I was blowing my nose because I have still a cold from returning from the trip I was on just recently. I apologize.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. SMOLINSKY: Mr. Stanley cites to a Fifth Circuit case, the Adams case, for the premise that a notice has to be sent to the proper name and address. But in that case, the address was wrong, the notice came back undeliverable, and the claimant had no notice of the bankruptcy.

Interestingly, when we -- the first thing we did when we received the motion was to make sure that the address was correct, so we did put into Google the Law Offices of Martin Stanley and got back from Google Stanley Martin, Attorneys at Law. So even the World Wide Web is confused as to whether it's Stanley Martin or Martin Stanley. But the fact of the matter is that the notice did not come back undeliverable.

It's also interesting that, in the declaration, he says he says that he never received notice, but the motion cites four reasons for the failure of service, including "GM's failure to use proper business name of Wiesjahn/Sand counsel if it even mailed notice". So this was the first pleading that Mr. Stanley filed, and he had already known that the business name was incorrect.

Second, I just want to speak to the assertion that we should have served the plaintiffs directly, which may not be part of your tentative ruling. You may have already ruled on that. But I just wanted to note a few things. First of all, well, the complaint that was filed did not provide the address of the plaintiff. It simply said that they resided in Monterey, California. The complaint was filed less than a month before the bankruptcy. There was no discovery in the case yet.

We called our co-counsel that was assigned to the matter, and the only thing that is in the file so far is an accident report that lists the decedent's address as a P.O. box in Big Sur where the accident occurred, which he thought might be the morgue or the state police. So we had -- we never had notice of an address for the plaintiffs, individually, and we did make every effort when we served over two and a half million parties to serve both the plaintiffs and the plaintiffs' counsel, if we had the address.

Mr. Stanley had notice of the bankruptcy through the suggestion of bankruptcy that was filed in the state court litigation, and he never came to us and asked for different or additional notice.

The case law supports the fact that serving on counsel is sufficient. I note the in re: Caritas case 435 B.R. 111.

That's the Eastern District of New York, 2010. The in re:

Linzer case 264 B.R. 243. That's the Bankruptcy Court, Eastern District of New York, holding that a creditor's nonbankruptcy is deemed to an authorized agent for receiving notice. And the Netherlands Antilles re: Treister case. That's 38 B.R. 228.

That's a Southern District of New York case that finds that service on co-counsel, as opposed to lead to lead counsel, is sufficient for all purposes.

Just a moment on the equities here. Mr. Stanley argues that the claim is negligible and therefore it's no harm, no foul to the estate. But again, I remind this Court that the aggregate of all similar case -- claims that have been asserted is daunting.

While I loathe to get into the facts of the case, I think it is relevant as to how much time and money the estate is going to spend on this. If Your Honor took a look at the complaint that was filed to the motion, this relates to a product liability claim relating to a car accident. As the clai -- as the complaint alleges, the decedent was a passenger in a car driven by a drunk driver, hit by another drunk driver, and the decedent passed away at the scene. And then there's a line about the spare tire being defective. There's no allegations that the spare tire contributed in any way to the incident. And I just note that for the record, because this evidentiary hearing will, at least, cost some money to do.

The last thing that I just want to bring up to Your Honor' attention, I think Your Honor noted it, but I wanted to cite to one case, the Ms. Interpret v. Rawe Druck-undVeredlungs case, 222 B.R. 409, that's a bankruptcy, Southern District, 1998 case that stands for the proposition that a party must do more than merely assert that it had not received the mailing. Its testimony or affidavit of nonreceipt is insufficient standing alone to rebut the presumption that the addressee received a proper mailed item when the sender presents proof that it has properly addressed, stamped, and deposited the item in the mail.

When we attached to our papers an affidavit of service of the bar date, which lists the three notices that went out. We did not put it in declaration form, pursuant to the case management order. We understand if Your Honor wants to take testimony from Garden City Group on whether, in fact, it did place it in the mail. But to the extent that we do have an evidentiary hearing, I would only ask Your Honor that we -- in view of all the other factors that we limit the evidentiary hearing solely to the issue as to whether or not the mailing was sent and whether or not it came back undelivered.

THE COURT: All right. Mr. Stanley, I'll take brief reply.

MR. STANLEY: Can Your Honor hear me okay?
THE COURT: Yeah.

MR. STANLEY: Okay. Two points, Your Honor. One, I think mine is the only case where they reversed the names, so it's not going to cause a floodgate of litigation with regards to this issue. And secondly, we indicated in our brief that we put something in there in our first papers, actually, if Your

Honor would look at their web site, which we did, the Motors Liquidation web site, it's clearly indicated that my name was backwards and incorrect. So of course, that's how we figured it out. We didn't just guess at that.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. STANLEY: It's right up there on their web site.

THE COURT: All right. Anything else?

MR. STANLEY: Nothing else, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right. Gentlemen, I am going to adhere to my tentative, and now I'm merely going to flesh it out since this is just a weigh station to the evidentiary hearing that I think is necessary.

As I indicated in my preliminary remarks, upon mailing, there is a, not just an inference but a presumption of receipt. And while I think what's sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander, and therefore I should hear a Garden City Group testimony, it wouldn't surprise me if that evidence is going to show that they had routinized procedures under which they mail things in accordance with their proofs of service. And that will, indeed, be sufficient to set up the presumption.

However, I am not going to limit the evidentiary hearing to whatever Garden City says, just as I'm not going to ask the United States Postal Service have its employees deposed or showing up in my courtroom because I mainly want to hear Mr. Stanley and look him in the eye and make my own factual determination as to whether or not he got actual notice.

Because he was a known agent of his clients, there was no need for the debtors to serve the individual clients.

However, I don't think you don't need to be a brain surgeon to see whether, if there was error here, how it came up. You've got a guy whose first name and his last name both happen to be in common usage as both. I wouldn't be surprised if Garden City tells me that it kept people's name alphabetically by last name, and then that that accounts for why it may have been addressed that way. And then we'll figure out what happened.

And it's going to rise on the credibility issue because, frankly, I don't see floodgates as being an issue here where you have the perfect storm of a guy's name being flip-flopped. And if the guys wants to come in my courtroom and testify as to nonreceipt, I'm going to let him. And the remaining issues don't, either, require an evidentiary hearing or any further ruling on my part.

This is all about actual notice. I don't consider it an implied or informal proof of claim showing to have been appropriately made here. That issue is out of the case at this point.

So you're to deal with teeing it up for an evidentiary hearing if the whole issue can't be resolved in some other way.

And of course, the debtors will give Mr. Stanley the same courtesies they always give everyone else in terms of Page 34 accommodating his medical condition for the time of any 1 2 hearing. And if I do permit the claim to be late-filed, of 3 course that's allowing a claim. Presumably, then it will go 4 into the same ADR mechanism, which, if it happens, will duly 5 take into account the fact that the decedent's injuries, at 7 least seemingly, may have resulted, in great part, from the effects of the two other causes, two drunken drivers. 8 my ruling, folks. 9 10 MR. STANLEY: Can I just have a few seconds on that last issue, Your Honor? 11 12 THE COURT: No, because other than giving you a reservation of rights, I'm not ruling on it in any way. 13 MR. STANLEY: Fair enough. 14 15 THE COURT: Okay. 16 MR. STANLEY: I appreciate it. Thank you. And when is it that the Court would like to have the hearing, or do we 17 set that up --18 19 THE COURT: You talk to Mr. -- you talk to Mr. 20 Smolinsky or one of his designees and tee this up for further 21 proceedings. MR. STANLEY: All right, I appreciate your help and 22 counsel's help, Your Honor, in --23 24 THE COURT: You don't need to thank me. That's why 25 the government pays me.

Page 35 MR. STANLEY: Of course. Thank you for letting me 1 2 appear on CourtCall at least. (Indiscernible) fly out there for a hearing. 3 THE COURT: All right, very well. MR. STANLEY: Okay, take care. 5 6 THE COURT: Thank you. 7 MR. STANLEY: Bye. THE COURT: Next matter, Mr. Smolinsky; your next 9 series of matters. 10 MR. SMOLINSKY: Thank you, Your Honor. The last 11 contested matter, which isn't really contested, is the objection to the claim of Amiel D. Foley. That was a claim 12 13 filed in the amount of 999 trillion dollars or, in the alternative, to make him CEO of the company. 14 I don't know if Mr. Foley is in the courtroom or on 15 16 the phone. 17 THE COURT: Want to pause to find out? MR. SMOLINSKY: Yes. Is Mr. Foley present? 18 19 THE COURT: All right. Well, he doesn't appear to be 20 present in the courtroom. Is Mr. Foley on the phone? The record will reflect no response. 21 22 MR. SMOLINSKY: Thank you, Your Honor. We tried to 23 ascertain the background of this claim. It may relate to a letter he sent to General Motors Corporation relating to an 24 25 idea for a new engine. We noted in our papers that in New GM's effort to take any technology that existed, they took an assignment of that letter to the extent that it was an executory contract. But we have no further information about the claim.

Obviously, given the size of the claim and the lack of foundation, we would ask this Court to expunge the claim at this time.

THE COURT: Objection sustained. Have one of your staff paper the ruling.

MR. SMOLINSKY: Yes, Your Honor.

Speaking of papering ruling, just as a housekeeping matter, we thank you for your timely decision on the Apartheid matter. It was unclear whether or not you intended us to submit an order or whether your bench decision served that purpose.

THE COURT: No, I realized that after I did it, Mr. Smolinsky, but I'm very careful that when I anticipate that a ruling be not just an explanation of my views, but also an order, I say it very, very explicitly. And I'm also mindful, especially since I wrote this section of Collier on it, of the separate judgment rule.

So yes, it must be followed by an order and, because of the nature of this, it can be a combined order and judgment, but it must say the baby words, judgment -- baby-talk words, judgment in addition to merely saying order.

And while I'm confident that you have a cooperative working relationship with the folks on the other side, since I assume that they would want to, at least, consider their opportunities for appeal, and you would have to put in full reservations of rights, my recommendation to you is that the order and judgment be settled upon them, but that you have a phone call with them to find out in advance whether they -- what they need in the way of an opportunity to submit a counter order or judgment.

And for the avoidance of doubt, I'm going to say now that the time to appeal from, either, the order aspect or the judgment aspect, or both, is going to run from the time that's entered and not from the time of the written decision that I issued. I forgot when I issued it.

MR. SMOLINSKY: Last week.

THE COURT: This week, earlier this week, last week, whenever it was. I think it was Friday afternoon or something like that.

MR. SMOLINSKY: That sounds about right.

THE COURT: Okay. So settle an order. Maybe the way to do it, Mr. Smolinsky, is to simplify what I said. Give them two calendar weeks, fourteen days, by mail or seven days by hand, fax, or e-mail. But if one of them calls you up and says we'd like more time before the order is signed because we want to submit a counter order, if it's reasonable -- and by

Page 38 reasonable, I'm thinking weeks, a week, not multiple weeks --1 2 give them that courtesy. MR. SMOLINSKY: Your Honor, we've spoken to claimant's 3 counsel since the decision, and I don't think it'll be a 4 problem to be able to submit to Your Honor even before this 5 6 time frame of consented to order of --7 THE COURT: Okay. MR. SMOLINSKY: -- both parties. 9 THE COURT: Which, of course, would be without prejudice to both sides' rights if either of them -- either 10 11 side wants something beyond my court. 12 MR. SMOLINSKY: Of course, Your Honor. 13 THE COURT: That's fine. I should have let you speak before I went into that lengthy discussion. Of course you were 14 It did require an order and judgment, and just make it 15 16 happen. 17 MR. SMOLINSKY: We'll do that, Your Honor. THE COURT: Oh, I would appreciate it if you or your 18 19 designee, when that order comes in, tells me whether it is ripe 20 for immediate entry or whether I still need to allow for time for the other side to counter. 2.1 MR. SMOLINSKY: I will, of course, Your Honor. 22 THE COURT: Okay, thank you. 23 MR. SMOLINSKY: On the uncontested matters, the first 24 25 matter is an objection to several proofs of claim relating to what we call the GTO class action. Your Honor, these claimants apparently withdrew their claims upon receiving our motion, and what we'd like to do, nevertheless, rather than withdraw the motion is to submit an order that, obviously, reflects the fact that the claims have been withdrawn but nevertheless disallowing them.

There's been no response to the motion -- to the substance of the motion.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SMOLINSKY: The next matter, similarly, is a class action. This relates to parking brakes. We've objected to those claims on class certification and other matters. We've received no response to that motion. We ask that the claims be disallowed.

THE COURT: They are, granted.

MR. SMOLINSKY: With respect to the other matters, they're all omnibus claims objections, running from, I guess it's 111 to 136. As usual, Your Honor, we've received a variety of formal and informal responses. Your law clerk had reached out to us and had indicated that there were a few letters that were sent to the court that have not yet been uploaded to ECF. We suspect that we also got copies of those letters, but we also want to make sure that we don't expunge claims to the best of our ability to the extent that there are outstanding requests.

Page 40 So what we would ask Your Honor, unless you have any 1 2 questions is to wait two or three days until the dust settles and then submit the orders, which, as usual, will reflect the 3 schedules to those orders, which claims are being expunged 4 because we've resolved any issues or there were no response, 5 6 which claims have been adjourned and which claims that we're withdrawing our motion with respect to. 7 THE COURT: That's fine, Mr. Smolinsky, but you and your guys can help me by you being the ones who are proactive. 9 When you think the dust is sufficiently cleared, then say now, 10 11 we think it's ripe. 12 MR. SMOLINSKY: Yes, Your Honor. 13 THE COURT: Okay. MR. SMOLINSKY: I think that resolves the calendar. 14 THE COURT: Okay, very well. Then, we're adjourned. 15 16 Have a good day everybody. 17 MR. SMOLINSKY: Thank you, Your Honor. 18 (Whereupon these proceedings were concluded at 10:35 AM) 19 20 21 22 23 24 25
